

Learn More About Submit Your Blog

If you want to understand the method to submit your blog to any search engine then you should know that this method is really simple and quick. This method is very similar to submission of a website and there are only a few differences between the two. If you want to index your blog quickly then you should understand the different between submit your blog and website. If you are aware of these differences, you can submit your blog correctly.

Suppose you submit your blog on Google so you have to make a sitemap. You should make a sitemap no matter you are submitting a blog or a website. The sitemap should be checked regularly to make sure that Google is not meeting any errors with your sitemap. Once you have submitted your blog, you would not require submitting it again to Google but all you have to do is to update your sitemap.

You can also install the sitemap plugin for automatically keeping your sitemap up to date. Apart from that, the sitemap plugins also keep on reporting Google regarding the changes on your website. Blogging software is required to generate sitemaps. There are tools offered by Google which can be used for the creation of sitemaps and these tools are used when you do not want to go for the blogging software. In addition, the site on Google is added even if you do not create the sitemap.

Google does not allow the direct submission of the blogs. Once you submit your blog site to blog directories, Google conforms its blog search. You can use different websites to submit your site to blog directories such as Feed Shot. The only thing you need to do is to update your site at these blog directories.

Instead of submitting your blog to sitemap you have to submit it to site feed if you are submitting to Yahoo. You are required to submit your feed by using the first block. To add your blog faster, add your blog feed to your My Yahoo page. An account on Yahoo or Google is required to submit your blog and you can get this account free of cost.

As there are various search engines and the third largest search engine is MSN however, it is very different from the other search engines. You do not require an account and can submit directly if you want to submit your blog to MSN. Moreover, you should check the list of the blog directories before you ping your blog for the first time. The best thing about blog directories is that they are providing you blogs submissions free of cost and at the same time they offer you a huge reach to audience.
