

Finding the Right Moving companies

If you are moving to your new home or to a new office then it is very important to find good moving companies. You would want to select from reputable ones, although there are actually thousands of moving companies to choose from, if you do not want your move to be taxing and expensive. When you move, remember that you are moving your valued possessions so you have to move with a company you can trust. Fly by night moving companies are out there so they are the ones you must stay away from. Do not worry, though. There are also moving companies that provide excellent service and fare rates, as there are also those that do nothing but scam their customers. So how do you go about finding the right moving companies?

Well the first thing that you should do is to do a little research. By checking out the internet and your local listings, see if you can find professional moving companies. In your research, check the ratings of the moving companies and also the feedback from customers. Also it would be good if the moving companies have long track record. That they have been in service long enough to satisfy their customers is what this translates to. Now from your research, select at least five moving companies. It is also important to get their DOT and MC license numbers, their company address and local and toll free numbers. Any dubious information is already a sign that they are not to be trusted. And also important in your research, ask for references and contact them. Now choose the best five moving companies from your list and forget about their rates at this time.

Second, call the moving companies and ask how they are going to go about estimates. Inquire them if they do in home estimate. Then ask if they will do the move or if they subcontract the job. If they depend on subcontracting, then you should think twice about the safety of your things and the reliability of their service. It is better for you to find moving companies that do the moving themselves. Now if they have local office you should check it out. This way you can see their storage facilities and their trucks. You can then fairly assess the company with the safety of their storage facilities and the quality of their trucks. For example, moving companies that do not have permanent company name and logo on their trucks is certainly what you do not want.

Comparing the quotes from the different moving companies is your third step. Some moving companies will have higher rates than others because of the services they offer. So check the other services, such as the amount insured and the valuation of your things. Do not just look at the total amount of what the move will cost you. Although not in your budget, these can make a difference in the overall security and safety of your belongings. Do not be enticed by moving companies that offer unreasonably cheap rate even though moving is really quite expensive. Unreasonably cheap rate is one indication that they are not your typical professional movers.

Lastly among your five moving companies choose the one that you think is the best among them. Now once you have chosen the one you think is the best, call the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration and inquire about how the company is faring in terms of complaints. You can now hire this company, given good feedback.

About the Author

Get more info about movers, go by crosscountrymovingcompanies.net.

Source: <http://ultimatedepot.com>